
Offer as a Backup

Posted by helix247 - 2009/05/03 11:13

Hello,

I am starting a small wireless isp in florida, and am looking for something that would allow users to connect when they are having trouble with there wireless connection, specifically so the can connect to our support website. I would like to offer this dialup service as an option, but I was hoping to find out if this would be against this services policy. I am more than happy to provide additional information about specific uses. Please let me know if this is acceptable.

=====

Re:Offer as a Backup

Posted by matt - 2009/10/05 18:48

here are the terms and conditions.

<http://www.freedialup.org/site/content/view/21/26/>

the owner here remembers what it used to feel like to be the little guy and would probably chuckle at your creativity. at the bottom it explains how to contact us. if you just fully explain this is a free service and not part of your company.. as in push them to it explaining it is not your service.. it is only for personal use by the person (customer).. you could probably get away with it in my mind. this is only my opinion though. please see the link above for the owner's opinion.

Post edited by: matt, at: 2009/10/05 18:51

=====